

“Between every two pines is a doorway to a new world.” - John Muir

The Gifted Tree welcomes you to the virtual world of finding your tree planting location. As you know, someone has planted a gift tree in honor of you or someone you love. Your tree has been or will be planted in fire scar areas around Eldorado National Forest. Eldorado National Forest is located in the central Sierra Nevada mountain range, in eastern California near Lake Tahoe.

With the recent proliferation of forest fires in the area, reforestation of these burn scars is essential to prevent erosion and to create habitat for the many species of wildlife in the area. Recovery after a major wildfire is a long-term process. The first steps involve repairing areas damaged by fire suppression, and mitigating safety hazards such as fire weakened trees, burning stump holes, damaged utilities, and hazmat concerns. Many times, regeneration of the forest can occur naturally over time, but the recent fires have burned so hot, no natural regeneration occurs.

Your planting project includes planting a number of native species including several varieties of pine, cedar and fir trees. We plant a mix of these conifer saplings, which are 1-2 years old, with a goal of restoring the diversity of the forest and increasing its resilience to stressors such as drought, fire, disease and climate change.

You can view the general area of your planting by clicking on the following link:

Once connected to the map, feel free to zoom in and out to get a feel of the general planting area as well as its location in the United States and the world. The link is best viewed on a personal computer. Please understand that this is the general area of your tree planting. Your tree is planted among thousands of other gift trees and there is no plaque designating your gift tree and visiting the tree is unfortunately not possible.

Enjoy your gifted tree and know that it is making a monumental difference for the earth and opening a new doorway to the world for future generations.
